

Absolutely. The wires should be considered a public resource, constructed and maintained for decades with taxpayer as well as consumer monies. Access rights should be fair and should encourage firms to prosper based on quality of service rather than said firms' abilities to influence legislation and regulation.